

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

January 18, 2011

MAHER TERMINALS JOINS WESTAC

The Western Transportation Advisory Council (WESTAC) is pleased to welcome Maher Terminals LLC as the Council's newest member. Mark Schepp, Vice President and General Manager, will be Maher's representative to the Council.

Maher Terminals operates the Prince Rupert Container Terminal, the future Melford Container terminal in Nova Scotia, and North America's largest marine container terminal in the Port of New York and New Jersey.

About the Prince Rupert Container Terminal

After successfully converting the former Fairview Terminal from a general cargo facility to a state of the art container handling facility, container vessels commenced calling the Prince Rupert Container Terminal in October of 2007. As Prince Rupert is the closest major North American port to Asia with direct on-dock access to the CN Rail network, ocean carriers and their clients benefit from excellent transit times between Asia and North American markets.

As the terminal has been specifically designed as a high volume Intermodal container transfer facility, containers are rapidly moved between vessel and rail thereby further enhancing Prince Rupert's total transit time advantage. Strategically situated on the great circle route from Asia, Prince Rupert is also North America's deepest natural harbor. As such, the Prince Rupert Container Terminal is able to comfortably handle the world's largest container vessels in a highly productive and efficient manner.¹
